Overview

David Wright focuses primarily on complex business litigation matters. David's practice includes the prosecution and defense of business litigation claims, including putative class actions, consumer class actions, business torts, breach of contract claims, statutory claims, e.g., FDCPA, TCPA, and FDUTPA, and offers of judgment. His practice also includes securities litigation, from representing clients who have received subpoenas from the Securities and Exchange Commission to defending against consumer claims in FINRA arbitrations.

David's practice involves representation through the entire lifespan of a litigation — including all phases of motions practice, mediation, trial, and appellate review. He also works with clients to develop proactive strategies to reduce risk in current and prospective operations. His pragmatic and precise approach to his matters has resulted in numerous successful outcomes for his clients, who range from small business owners to publicly traded companies.

Prior to joining Carlton Fields, David served a two-year term as a law clerk to the Honorable Virginia Covington of the U.S. District Court for the Middle District of Florida. David also worked as an intern with the Florida Supreme Court in Tallahassee and as an elder law initiative intern with the Department of Justice. Whether in court or arbitration, David applies his insights from clerking with his litigation experience to obtain successful outcomes for clients.
