

NAIC Adopts "Roadmap for Cybersecurity Consumer Protections"

December 23, 2015

On December 17, 2015, members of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners Executive Committee approved a revised version of its Cybersecurity Bill of Rights that includes a name change and the addition of an introductory paragraph. The Task Force changed the name of the document to "NAIC Roadmap for Cybersecurity Consumer Protections," but the new introductory paragraph states that the document "functions as a Consumer Bill of Rights." The document is still intended to serve as an impetus for drafting a model cybersecurity law. This new "Roadmap" does not bind states to act on the document, nor does it bind states to a position that everything in the document should be in the model law. Notwithstanding these revisions, certain industry participants continue to believe that since no other changes have been made the document still goes beyond being aspirational and could mislead consumers about their legal rights. Further, the new document does not address the comments of certain regulated entities that parts of the Bill of Rights were inconsistent with existing state laws.

Related Practices

Cybersecurity and Privacy

Life, Annuity, and Retirement Litigation

©2024 Carlton Fields, P.A. Carlton Fields practices law in California through Carlton Fields, LLP. Carlton Fields publications should not be construed as legal advice on any specific facts or circumstances. The contents are intended for general information and educational purposes only, and should not be relied on as if it were advice about a particular fact situation. The distribution of this publication is not intended to create, and receipt of it does not constitute, an attorney-client relationship with Carlton Fields. This publication may not be quoted or referred to in any other publication or proceeding without the prior written consent of the firm, to be given or withheld at our discretion. To request reprint permission for any of our publications, please use our Contact Us form via the link below. The views set forth herein are the personal views of the author and do not necessarily reflect those of the firm. This site may contain hypertext links to information created and maintained by other entities. Carlton Fields does not control or guarantee the accuracy or completeness of this outside information, nor is the inclusion of a link to be intended as an endorsement of those outside sites.