

Carlton Fields Attorneys Discuss Growing Cybersecurity Exposure Facing Esports Industry

August 27, 2019

Carlton Fields' Cybersecurity Practice Chair, Joseph Swanson, and Esports Practice Co-Chairs Steven Blickensderfer and Nicholas Brown, authored an article for Law360 that discusses how the video gaming industry is just as susceptible to data breaches as other industries. The firm's nationally recognized Cybersecurity and Privacy practice routinely assists clients prepare for, and respond to, data security incidents, and to defend claims resulting from such alleged or reported incidents. Their article discusses the unique challenges in the ever-changing regulatory landscape, and offers suggestions for businesses and other organizations that need to institute meaningful cybersecurity and privacy compliance programs that minimize risk.

READ the article.

Related Practices

Esports and Electronic Gaming
Cybersecurity and Privacy

