

Carlton Fields' Andrew (Drew) Hinkes Quoted in Media about SEC's New Accredited Investor Rules

August 26, 2020

Carlton Fields blockchain attorney Andrew (Drew) Hinkes was featured in media articles about the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission's new rules expanding the definition of "accredited investors." "The modernization reflects the SEC's willingness to continue to consider further expansion of the definition to include other certifications or credentials and includes an invitation for the public to offer suggestions," Hinkes told CoinDesk. Hinkes' insights on this topic were also quoted in Decrypt and The Moguldom Nation.

Related Practices

Blockchain and Digital Currency

