

Carlton Fields' Christina M. Gagnier Featured in Los Angeles Business Journal for Community Impact

June 28, 2021

Carlton Fields Shareholder Christina M. Gagnier was recognized as a finalist for the Los Angeles Business Journal Community Impact Advocate Award. She was featured in the LABJ and recognized at a June 23 virtual ceremony celebrating honorees of the Women's Leadership Series and Awards. Gagnier's practice focuses on cybersecurity and privacy, blockchain technology, international regulatory affairs, technology transactions, and intellectual property. She is also a nationally recognized thought leader on laws governing online harassment, including nonconsensual pornography and cyberbullying. Passionate about technological education, Gagnier serves as the CEO of the Link Americas Foundation, which aims to improve digital literacy across the United States, Canada, and Central and South America. She is also the CEO of Know Before You Go, an organization that grants scholarships for college visits. In her local community, Gagnier serves as the incoming president of the board of directors of the Chino Valley Chamber of Commerce, and the vice president of the governing board for the Chino Valley Unified School District. READ: Los Angeles Business Journal, "2021 Women's Leadership Awards"

Related Practices

Cybersecurity and Privacy

