

From Military To Law: What Attys Took From Their Service

November 09, 2020

Carlton Fields attorney Charles M. Rosenberg was featured in a Law360 article about the experiences of attorneys who are U.S. military veterans. Rosenberg served in the U.S. Army Judge Advocate General's Corps during the Vietnam War. "I was married with a baby and left for Vietnam on my daughter's first birthday," Rosenberg told Law360. "Although the family separation was very difficult, I got a great deal of jury and non-jury trial experience that helped me enormously when I returned to civilian life. I also lived and worked with a diverse group of people I otherwise would not have met." READ: Law360, "From Military To Law: What Attys Took From Their Service" (subscription only)

Related Practices

Litigation and Trials

