

Lawyering Through Covid-19: Key Practice Changes One Year Later

March 11, 2021

Carlton Fields labor and employment attorney Rae T. Vann was quoted in a Bloomberg Law article examining the practice of workplace law since the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic. Vann told the publication that employers' concerns early in the pandemic primarily related to disability law, worker leave, and illness at work, and the focus has now shifted to vaccine-related issues. She added that racial justice has been a high priority for companies during the past year, and she is working with employers to "to really re-commit ourselves to looking at these issues, and to make sure that we're not passive bystanders and allowing unhealthy environments to exist by neglect." READ: Bloomberg Law, "Lawyering Through Covid-19: Key Practice Changes One Year Later"

Related Practices

Labor & Employment

